

LAVA COLLECTION

The raw material that we are using for Milstone lava collection is natural lava stone which created during a volcanic eruption.

The painting method is unique and not common because not usually we burn natural stones – The final results created during the fire process and the meeting of the raw material (lava stone) and the special glazes we are using. The main idea was to try and maintain the raw material natural characteristics as possible despite our intervention.

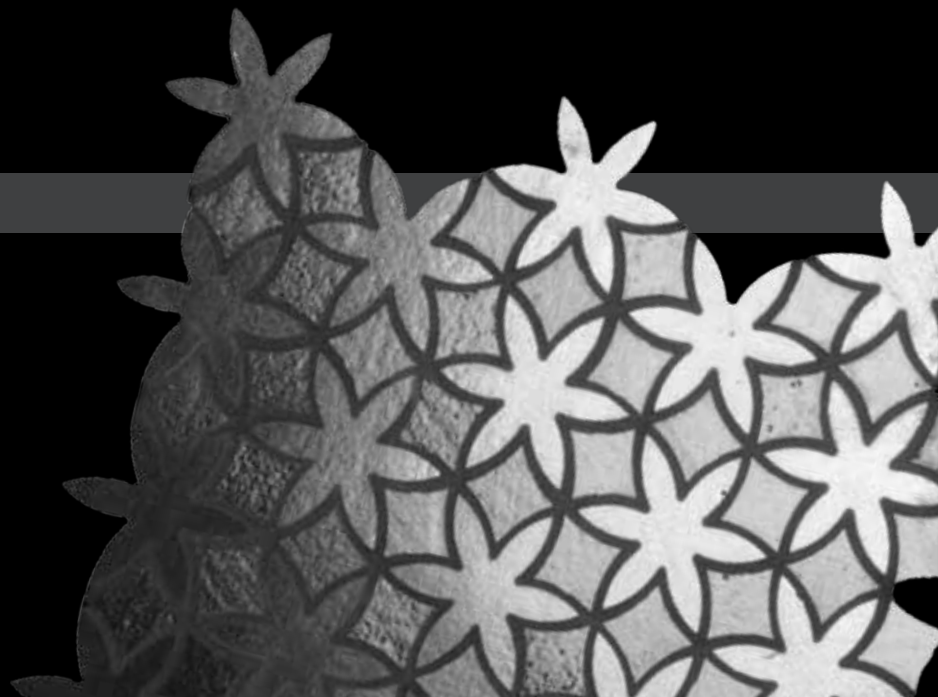

The temperature we use to fire the lava stone is 1050 degree(C) .

Since there are no natural stones with wide varieties of colors, and Due to the temperatures indicated, the result is very special in terms of shows and reminds Ceramics (the colorful) and yet the product has all the positive properties of natural stone such as high strength, moisture resistance, thermal insulation, etc.....

All the manufacturing process is handmade.

MILSTONE

The image shows a close-up of a rectangular metal plate with a weathered, yellowish-brown patina. The word "MILSTONE" is embossed in a bold, black, sans-serif font at the top of the plate. The plate is set against a dark, perforated metal background, likely a grate or a filter, which has a grid-like pattern of small holes. The lighting is dramatic, highlighting the textures of both the metal plate and the background.
